INSTRUCTIONS TO MICROFILMER

The Document Index will be located in a separate small binder. The Index should be filmed but do not record frame numbers for it.

The Table of Contents will be located at the beginning of each volume. It should be filmed but do not record frame numbers for it.

A separate copy of the Index will be provided for you. This is the Index upon which you will write the frame numbers beside each citation entry.

Each document corresponds with a citation entry in the index. The frame number will correspond with the first page of the document as it is filmed. A document is identified by a green or blue separator sheet preceding it.

Post-it notes will be used to give special instructions. Remove post-it notes when filming and replace after filming.

Page numbers do not appear on the Index. They will appear on each page of the document.

Do not record frame numbers for tabs, target and blue or green separator sheets unless otherwise specified.

Do not record frame numbers for cross-references.

Do not record frame numbers for the Sampling and Analysis Statement (may be found at the beginning either of the 2.2 or 3.2 break).

Copy both sides of double-sided pages.
